

Bouhan Falligant's Appellate Practice Helps Victims of Family Violence

Bouhan Falligant's appellate practice was honored to file a pro bono brief on behalf of a victim of family violence on Monday, asking the Court of Appeals to honor the plain-text meaning of a Georgia law allowing family-violence victims to seek protective orders against their alleged abusers. Lucas Bradley, a partner with the firm's appellate practice, had primary responsibility for the brief and was assisted by Logan Lineberry, an associate in the practice group.

Click here to read the full article.