

Commercial Litigation

Bouhan Falligant has an extensive and far reaching commercial litigation practice that has helped corporations, professional services firms, financial institutions and individuals bring and defend a wide-variety of lawsuits throughout the country. The firm has routinely represented businesses and individuals in significant and complicated breach-of-contract cases, shareholder disputes, and matters of mismanagement or breach of fiduciary duty.

Bouhan Falligant's commercial litigators have also successfully defended businesses and their agents that have been served with tort claims for alleged personal injuries, misrepresentations, conversion, and defamation. Bouhan Falligant's commercial litigators handle matters at the local, state and federal level. We are determined to meet our clients' business objectives in a timely and cost-effective manner. Our diverse client list includes litigation for large corporations and insurance companies.

Bouhan Falligant business and corporate lawyers have also helped resolved internal conflict among business owners and ease tension between management and labor. The firm has helped corporate executives work out disagreements as to the how control of a business should be divided and how profits and expenses should be shared. The firm has brought shareholder derivative suits to ensure that officers and directors look out for the best interests of a corporation. The firm has represented both employers and employees in disputes over the enforcement of non-compete clauses, compensation, and benefits.
